To whom it may concern:

Pedro Oliveira worked with helviX and has designed all the latest features on our platform, he's managed and improved our website, marketing material, and more. Pedro, or Oli as we love to call him, worked with me for almost a year at helviX and always delivered high quality user interface designs & better user experiences for our customers.

He was involved in early discovery phases of the product development processes, briefed with user challenges, developing prototypes in close cooperation with the product team to iteratively collect feedback ensuring that we were building what was needed before writing any code.

What impresses me most about Oli is his thirst for knowledge. He's constantly pushing himself to learn in all aspects of life. As it pertains to UI/UX design, he treats his design work as a craft that he's constantly trying to improve. A characteristic common in good designers. Oli also has a great work ethic. He was essentially a one man show at helviX and was always willing to go above and beyond to ensure the success of the project.

Oli is an invaluable asset to any design / engineering team, his dedication to make good design and deliver what is requested makes him a great addition to any organization. If you'd like to discuss his past success at helviX in more detail, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Unfortunately we had to let Oli go (as well as ~75% of our work force at the time) due to cash flow and funding related issues.

The only danger you are going to have with hiring Oli is that I'll try to rehire him at some point in the future!
